PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE OF GLENDALE SANITARIUM IS PRESENTED AT LUNCHEON

Chamber of Commerce Directors, Officials Of City, Representatives Of Various Civic Organizations at Gathering

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff

THE past history of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital and its future aims were clearly outlined by officials of the institution at the luncheon that was held in the sun room on the top of the new sanitarium building yesterday, when the directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, members of the City Council, heads of various civic organizations and a selected list of other guests were entertained by the sanitarium board.

President Jesse E. Smith, of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, presided at the luncheon, which was opened by Rev. Philip K. Kemp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, saying grace. At the start of the luncheon a toast was proposed by President Smith, at the suggestion of W. E. Hewitt, wishing success to the new sanitarium, after which the regular board meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held, an account of which appears elsewhere.

The reputation that the sanitarium staffs of the Seventh-day Adventist institutions have earned of being among the finest dietitians in the world, was amply borne out by the quality of the luncheon that was served to the guests under the capable and smooth-working direction of the hospital force, and the manner in which the function was staged reflected the greatest credit on the system that is in operation.

C. E. Kimlin, business manager of the institution, was warmly praised by many of the guests for the quality of the luncheon and for the efficient way in which it was served.

Elder W. M. Adams, president of the Southern California conference of the Seventh Day Adventist church, following the introduction of the members of the board by C. E. Kimlin, secretary-treasurer, explained to the guests that the board had been compelled to enlarge its hospital plant that was started on East Broadway in 1904, because of the growth in its operations that have followed as a direct consequence of the growth of Glendale.

Volume of Business

The volume of business that was done by the old institution during the eleven months ending June 1 of this year was $265,000, and he predicted that the amount of the gross busineess that will be done when the new building is thoroughly equipped and in operation would run over $500,000, as the 129 rooms that are being prepared for patients, aside from the other departments of the sanitarium, will be taxed to the limit from the day they are finished.

The weekly payroll for the sanitarium employes, Elder Adams declared, is $2500, and the payroll of the men employed on the building runs to $5000, making a total of $7500 weekly in wages alone. Seventy-five nurses are now in training in the institution to carry on the work of nursing, and the total number of employes, including nurses in training, amounts to 208 persons.

Since the institution was first founded 199 nurses have graduated after taking the course of training it provides, and have gone forth to do their share in the alleviation of suffering.

Treat Many Cases

Between 1800 and 2000 cases are treated annually in the present sanitarium on East Broadway, Elder Adams stated, and much of this work is done on a charitable basis in cases where patients are unable to pay.

In dealing with the plans for the future of the institution, Elder J. L. McElhany, president of the Pacific Union conference of the denomination, said that, as part of the Seventh Day Adventists' contribution to the progress of Glendale, it was their aim to give the city an institution that would be a credit to the city.

The new Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, he said, is one of a chain of similar institutions in the United States, of which four are located in California, the others being scattered from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast, and all of them accomplishing a noble work in bringing relief to the sick and suffering.

For the past sixty years, he asserted, the denomination has pursued a definite course in its church

102 DEAD IN COAL MINE DISASTER

Scenes of Disorder and Grief as Victims' Bodies Are Taken From Tomb

By M. F. DACEY
For International News Service

KEMMERER, Wyo., Aug. 15.—One hundred and two dead is the toll today of the terrific explosion in Frontier Mine No. 1 of the Kemmerer Coal company, which entombed 137 men and shook the countryside yesterday morning shortly after the miners had entered the workings for the day.

Ninety-one bodies had been removed early this morning and eleven more dead were known to be in the mine. Thirty-five men were rescued alive, but one died as he was being taken out. The explosion was caused by what is known as a "windy shot," the result of too heavy a charge of black powder.

P. J. Quealy, president of the company that operates the mine, has declined to issue any official statement. The explosion occurred between stope fifteen and seventeen, about a mile from the entrance of the mine and except for the thirty-five who came out alive, the workers had no chance for their lives, the poisonous gas overcoming them immediately.

Heroic action was performed by Naddi and Tony Davich, who locked twenty-seven men behind a stope barricading the death tunnel, which was partly cleared of the black damp. One of these twenty-seven were taken out alive. Naddi and Davich both died in their efforts to rescue others. Most of those dead are foreigners—Italians and Armenians and a few Japanese.

Forty-six bodies were at the

Gasoline Price Fight Reaches To Other States

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Eastern states today received the benefit of lower gasoline prices when the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announced a reduction of 1 cent a gallon in the price in New Jersey, Maryland and the District of Columbia and 2 cents a gallon in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. The reduction will bring the tank price down to 19½ cents a gallon.

Officials of the company said the cut did not forecast a rate war such as exists in the middle west. Rate slashing between the independents and the Standard Oil Company, it was said, was out of the question in the eastern states.

The cuts announced today were the natural result of the surplus supply of crude oil on hand, it was stated.

U.S.-MEXICAN TREATY IS COMPLETE

Recognition Assured Under Pact That Guarantees Property Rights

By H. K. REYNOLDS
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—A treaty of amity and commerce has been completed between America and Mexico as the final step in the negotiations leading to the recognition of the Obregon government, it was learned today.

Official announcement of recognition will be made by the state department as soon as the treaty has been approved by Secretary Hughes, possibly before the end of the week.

The negotiations, which were carried on in Mexico City between Charles Beecher Warren and John Barton Payne, the American commissioners, and representatives of the Mexican government were entirely satisfactory, according to officials. The treaty has settled all outstanding differences.

Guarantees Furnished

It is based chiefly on acceptance by Mexico of the program laid down by Secretary of State Hughes, providing for Mexican guarantees for the protection of alien property rights against confiscation.

Twice before the United States had agreed to sign a treaty of amity and commerce with Mexico but on both occasions the refusal of the Mexican government to accept the terms, prevented consummation. In January of this year the state department momentarily expected to settle the Mexican problem, but President Obregon informed this government that Mexico was not in a position to guarantee the property rights of foreigners with large oil and mineral holdings.

The exact terms of the new treaty will not be known until announced officially by the state department. It was understood that Obregon has finally accepted the terms originally laid down by Secretary Hughes.

CITY OFFICIALS LISTEN TO ARGUMENTS ADVANCED BY APPLICANTS FOR PERMIT

Postpone Action Because Long Beach Traffic Man Seeks to Examine Field to Determine If He Wants to Enter Competition

THE subject of bus transportation was laid upon the table for further consideration last night by the City Council. The surprise of last night's hearing in the council chamber at the city hall proved to be John H. Betts, Jr., president and general manager of the B. & H. Transportation Company of Long Beach, who admitted he is not familiar with Glendale conditions and asked for a delay in order that he might make a survey of the field to ascertain if he wished to make a formal application for a bus line permit. After much discussion of the transportation problem in general, the council decided to hold another "bus line" meeting at a date yet to be set.

Don L. Campbell of Tujunga, manager of the Verdugo Hills Transportation company, outlined the service which his organization proposes to inaugurate, provided it secures the necessary franchise. He called attention to the fact that only two definite routes have been tentatively established. He added that the company wished the city administration to arrange additional routes where they would best serve the citizens of Glendale.

The object of the local busses established by this company would be to serve as "feeders" for the Los Angeles service of the Verdugo Hills Transportation company. Mr. Campbell said that accommodations would be provided in the service to Los Angeles to take care of the additional patronage.

Increase in Busses

The fare, under this management, would be 5 cents for the entire cross-town service south of the Verdugo Wash. Half-rate tickets would be sold to school children. Free transfers would be issued to the Los Angeles busses.

The Verdugo Hills Transportation company, according to Mr. Campbell, now has four busses under construction which are scheduled for delivery in the near future. He stated that the company intended to put on about seven busses of the most modern type and would maintain half hour service. He said that thirty or sixty days' additional time would be necessary to secure the extra busses.

O. A. Smith, general passenger manager for the Pacific Electric, outlined the extension of bus service contemplated by this company. He emphasized the fact that transfers would be issued between the busses and the interurban service.

"We propose to put on a high class bus service here," remarked Mr. Smith. "If any of you gentlemen have been in Pasadena recently you have seen some of the busses. They cost about $7800 each and are very good busses. They are very much superior to the busses that we have at present running in Glendale."

Councilman C. E. Kimlin inquired how long it would take to get busses in operation. Mr. Smith replied that it would require sixty days to put new busses into service. He added that the company has some old busses which could be utilized temporarily.

"I am afraid if you put the old ones on, we wouldn't get the new ones," exclaimed Councilman Sam Davis.

Mr. Smith laughed and re

Bay City Men Nabbed As Rum Smugglers

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—James Hopkins, former county grand juror, and Edward Marron, former assemblyman, and three others were trapped today by Lieut. of Police William Henry and a squad of officers in a rum smuggling expedition in China Basin.

Hopkins and Marron were charged with conspiracy to violate the Wright act and carrying concealed weapons. James Murphy was also booked on the same charges, and was waiting with Hopkins and Marron for the arrival of a launch. Two Italian fishermen were arrested and sixty-seven cases of booze and eighty-six sacks of liquor were seized. The fishermen were booked on similar charges. The police, acting on a secret tip, saw the three men waiting for the rum runner, they said, and arrested them before its arrival.

Indicted Broker Will Furnish Bond, Belief

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—Bond for $50,000 was expected to be furnished today for A. W. Coote, stock broker, who went bankrupt several weeks ago for approximately $5,000,000, following his indictment by the grand jury on seven specific allegations. Coote was not held in the county jail last night as Sheriff William I. Traeger was prevailed upon to have two of his deputies pass the night with Coote in his pretentious apartment.

Coote's crash is said to have been a direct result of the failure of the firm of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne of New York, for which Coote was the Los Angeles agent. Four thousand persons are said to have lost money in the Coote failure.

Declares Huge Plot Directed Against Farmer

RADCLIFFE, Ia., Aug. 15.—In a reply to C. E. Meredith, secretary of agriculture, who recently disparaged his efforts to obtain an extra session of Congress, United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart today charged the agricultural depression of the last three years was part of a gigantic scheme of deflation aimed at the American farmer. The senator spoke before a meeting of the county farm federationists. His address was part of a series of speeches he plans to deliver over the state this summer.

Wall street, the packing interests and "the big fellows generally" are included in Brookhart's indictment against the alleged instigators of business depression that swept in, in the fall of 1920. Meredith is charged with "extreme dereliction of duty" by not taking measures to prevent farm losses.

COAL STRIKE PARLEY IS LAUNCHED

Commission Calls Conference in Effort to Avoid Strike of Miners

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Representatives of miners and operators of the anthracite coal fields were gathered here today for a conference with the United Statees coal commission, which is seeking to avoid a strike, now threatened for September 1.

John L. Lewis, international union head, will head the miners. Samuel D. Warrener, chairman, will be spokesman for his group. John Hays Hammond, chairman of the coal commission, will preside over the conference.

The position of the three factions as outlined in the pre-conference statements showed:

Lewis: "While accepting the government's invitation to confer, the miners have in no way backed down from their demand that the operators grant full recognition of the union."

Warrener: "The operators now, as always, are ready to arbitrate their differences."

The conference was expected to last two or three days.

Coolidge Is Firm

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The first effort of the Coolidge administration to end the deadlock existing between anthracite operators and miners in the negotiation of a new wage scale, the calling of representatives from each of the two warring groups to meet with the United States coal commission in New York this afternoon, is expected to result in a speedy resumption of negotiations, government officials expected today.

It was stated the administration would not countenance any prolonged discussion of the big point at issue between the operators and miners.

In the meantime, the administration is going ahead with its program of furnishing an ample supply of anthracite substitutes, bituminous coal, briquettes and coke, if a strike in the anthracite fields actually takes place.

WOMEN SHRIEK AND FAINT AS STATE TROOPS SHOOT IN AIR MAKING CAPTURE

Republican Party Chief, Taken Into Custody Making Campaign Speech, Does Not Try to Escape; Audience Panic-Stricken

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—Eamonn De Valera, leader of the Irish republican party and the most aggressive foe of the Free State, was arrested in County Clare today while making a campaign speech. De Valera had not been speaking for more than two minutes, when the cry went out: "Soldiers are coming." The Free State troops rushed up firing a volley into the air over the platform. Then they closed in and seized De Valera who made no protest.

There were about 2000 persons in the audience. Great excitement arose while the soldiers were making the arrest. Women shrieked and fainted. The crowd at first made some show of resistance but immediately afterward stampeded and made off in fright.

Before the arrest was made, an armored car dashed up the village street with soldiers firing into the the air. At the first warning De Valera fell upon the platform.

Crowd in Panic

The crowds about the place quickly broke into panic. A handful of personal supporters, believing De Valera had been wounded, surrounded him and lifted him up. By this time the soldiers had reached the platform. They had bayonets attached to their rifles and turned aside the crowd at the point of the cold steel. De Valera was taken into custody. He assured his friends he had not been hurt.

Meantime, the bulk of the crowd was taking refuge in side streets. A small body of men and women attempted to rush the troops while onlookers cheered.

The soldiers coolly pointed their bayonets at the onrushing crowd, deftly turning it aside.

Fainted, is Report

The government announced that De Valera's arrest was made under the Public Safety Act. He will be held in prison until his future status is decided. He may be a prisoner until after the election of August 27. It was reported here that several members of the crowd fired revolvers and that some persons were knocked down and trampled.

De Valera had been driven to Ennis in disguise in an open automobile.

According to a newspaper correspondent who was nearby, De Valera fainted, which accounted for his fall on the platform.

Would You Like to Live in Glass House?

George A. Shields, Ohio inventor, who visited in Glendale a year ago, is winning wide recognition by his invention of a machine for making glass suitable for building purposes, a material said to be cheaper than brick, stone, cement or lumber. A recent account of the invention says, "Mr. Shields believed a glass house could be made and erected at a lower cost than one of stone, brick, cement or lumber.

"He is a glass-maker and thoroughly understands the mechanical as well as the chemical requirement, from selecting the proper sand to finishing the glass for commerce.

"His idea is to build with glass walls; an outer wall of slabs running up and down and an inner wall of glass, leaving an air chamber between the two. The glass can be made opaque to obscure visibility. The inner glass walls can be made of different colored glass for ornamental purposes.

"A glass building would be economy itself in upkeep. It will never require painting, plastering, papering nor repair of decay.

"Mr. Shields plans to make along with the plates for houses, squared glass blocks, on the order of concrete building blocks. These will be suitable for buildings of the size usually constructed of concrete blocks. At present he plans for five and six room cottages. Later, he expects to develop his plans for two-story structures.

"This discovery in chemistry of making glass, and the invention of an entirely new machine for manufacturing it, is one of the notable events of the age.

"Mr. Shields lives in Columbus, Ohio. In personal appearance and individual characteristics he reminds one of Henry Ford."

The glory to wear them while living Fate thwarted.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Birthday Surprise

Miss Elizabeth Breneisa, of Dixon, Ill., who has made many friends in Glendale upon summer visits here, was happily surprised last night when she visited the S. C. Kinch home at 328 North Brand boulevard to find that her sister, Mrs. A. C. Schrader and Mrs. Kinch were hostesses at an informal social affair celebrating her birthday.

In arranging her home for the affair Mrs. Kinch used large vases of bright asters, dahlias and Canterbury bells.

An informal social time was enjoyed by the company, Miss Breneisa being congratulated by clever songs, appropriate words having been written by Mrs. Kinch, and sung to familiar tunes.

Late in the evening a clever and fitting prophecy for Miss Breneisa was read by the author, Mrs. Neil Jameson of Hollywood.

Just at the end of this reading a beautiful birthday table was brought in and placed before the honoree. The color scheme of the table decoration was lavender, pink and white. A large white birthday cake, bearing August 14, 1923, in pink icing and flickering pink candles, was the centerpiece. About it were large candles resting in the hearts of pink and lavender paper roses.

A pink box filled with novel presents was placed under the table, and pink streamers from the gifts led to the cake above. Clever messages accompanied each gift, and opening them proved most entertaining.

The gifts were humorous ones, and others useful for Miss Breneisa when she returns to her Illinois home in two weeks.

A pleasant feature of the celebration was that Mrs. Kinch's birthday occurs on Thursday, and to mark this event, she was presented with a white birthday cake, decorated with green leaves and candles, a gift from Mrs. Jameson.

The two birthday cakes were cut and served with salted nuts, ice cream and coffee.

Assisting Mrs. Schrader and Mrs. Kinch were Mrs. Neil Jameson of Hollywood, Rita Schrader and Mrs. Kinch's mother, Mrs. S. E. Benson.

Included in the company were Miss Elizabeth Breneisa and her mother, Mrs. S. M. Breneisa; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Schrader and daughter, Rita; Mr. and Mrs. Neil Jameson of Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Lem Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Falter and son, Harold; Mrs. Rena Henderson, Charles Damarell, Mr. and Mrs. S. C Kinch and Mrs. S. E. Benson.

BREACH WIDENED IN FILM QUARREL

Revelation of Taylor-Minter Betrothal Is Shock to Mother of Star

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—The confession of Mary Miles Minter, screen luminary, that she loved and was engaged to marry William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, who was slain here eighteen months ago, today caused her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, who was recently operated upon, to suffer a setback in progress toward recovery, according to reports coming from her home in South New Hampshire street. The breach between the actress and her mother was reported widened today when it was learned the star now refuses to see her mother for a settlement of the $1,300,000 which Miss Minter claims her mother owes her and that the matter will be left to their attorneys to be thrashed out in court. It was understood among friends of Mrs. Shelby, as well as those of Miss Minter, that Mrs. Shelby is inclined to make a compromise settlement rather than have the affair taken to court.

The actress also took occasion today to deny a reported statement of her mother that she had squandered $100,000. She declared that the sum was $60,000, and that she had invested more than half of the amount in Hollywood real estate, and that the property had been already doubled in value.

Miss Minter also reasserted her love for Taylor today, and declared she felt that a load had been taken from her shoulders, now that the secret of her life had been bared.

Mary Miles Minter's Real Name Is 'Riley'

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 15.—Mary Miles Minter, film actress, who, press dispatches from Los Angeles say, has declared she will bring suit against her mother for $1,300,000, is the daughter of Homer Riley, a proofreader on the Dallas Evening Journal. Her right name is Juliette Riley. Miss Minter assumed the name of a deceased cousin at the age of 15 years, while she was playing with Dustin Farnum in "The Little Rebel." Miss Minter's father and mother were divorced several years ago. Both have since remarried.

During the World war, Riley, who had not heard from her for years, wrote his daughter. She sent him a handsome watch and other gifts during his service days, but it is understood the two again drifted apart after the war, and that Miss Minter has always remained with her mother, now Mrs. Charlotte Shelby.

Large sums are being donated by philanthropists for experimentation looking toward a cure for cancer.

KANSAN MAY WED 'HUMAN CHATTEL'

Farmer Offers to Take One Of Two Girls Claimed Sold by Father

CORTLAND, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Sold, it is alleged, by their parents in a "swap" that involved a horse, a cow and a heifer calf, Jessie Thorington, 23, and her sister, Belle, 15, today have before them the offer of married happiness and a home, sent them in letter form by Ray Cart of Rosedale, Kan.

Cart, in his unique marriage proposal, offers to wed either one of the young women, whose father has pleaded guilty to charges of improper guardianship here. A brother of the two girls was also included in the "sale" that made the three human chattels of George Shaw of Truston.

"I am 27 years old," Ray Cart writes, "and operate my father's dairy farm. I earn $125 a month. Do you think you could live on that amount? I read of this unusual case in a Kansas City newspaper and became so touched by the plight of the girls that I am making this offer to marry one of them. My only request is that my letter might be read by the judge who sentenced their father and that his opinion be given upon my offer. I also wish, in the event of one of the girls accepting me, that her photograph be forwarded to my home."

Cart furnishes a list of lodges with which he is affiliated and also many references. He requests that his status be investigated and gives names of officers of his fraternal organizations, to whom Cortland authorities are asked to write for information concerning his character.

Cortland officials are puzzled as to what disposition to make of the marriage offer from the Kansas man. It is probable that Judge Champlin will be asked to pass upon the letter before any investigation of Cart is made.

Club Making Matches for Paris Lovelorn

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Albert Furtwengler, young Paris newspaperman, sought a gentle Parisienne for a wife.

Mlle. Camille Fraigne, bank employe, wanted nothing in the world so much as a faithful, industrious husband.

As No. A-19 of the "Green Ribbon Club," Furtwengler met Mlle. Fraigne, designated, in the same club, as No. A-236. A-19 fell in love with A-236 and, through the club president, proposed marriage to her.

A-236 accepted, also through the president, learning for the first time her future husband's name, occupation and status in life. A-19 also for the first time learned just exactly who A-236 was.

102 ARE DEAD IN MINE HORROR

Women and Children Crowd Around Shaft as Bodies Are Brought Out

Fitzpatrick place, forty-three at Odd Fellows' hall and two had been removed to a nearby church.

Undertakers and their assistants were working over the bodies at the two morgues. Some of the victims were burned, the majority dying in their traps of suffocation. As the bodies were slowly uncovered at the morgue a few showed signs of being slightly burned and three or four were red and blistered about the face and head and upper portion of the body. There was no mutilation, however, making the work of identification a comparatively easy task.

Scenes of Disorder

The scenes at the morgue were in striking contrast to the outburst of hysteria that immediately followed the explosion. Hundreds of women and children ran bareheaded and some scantily dressed to the mouth of the mine, a little less than a half mile from the village. Disorder marked the first two or three hours. It required occasional force to restrain many women from entering the underground death passages.

Many of the crazed widows were hysterical from the vain task of trying to rescue their loved ones. Large crowds continued to surge around the portals of the mine tomb.

Sobbing women rushed to the cars as the relief cars came out praying that "their man" might be alive. The first car came out at 7:45 o'clock, nearly twelve hours after the fatal explosion occurred. The dead men were all in a remarkably good condition and as the number of bodies coming out increased and were partially identified, the throng around the opening of the mine dwindled.

About a hundred persons remained throughout the night, but the period of fright had passed and only the occasional moan of a newly-made widow, and the quiet sobbing of young children marked the scene of Kemmerer's worst mine disaster.

Hampered by Gas

A cavein occurred near the 1,700 foot level shortly after the explosion and the bursting of a water main greatly hampered the rescue work for many hours. The rescue volunteers were aided in the late afternoon and night by a United States rescue crew that arrived on the scene at 2 p. m. Despite the use of helmets and many gallons of oxygen, the extremely "bad" air in the mine forced the rescue workers to frequently come to the entrance of the mine. The relays worked for approximately twenty minutes during the day, and it was early evening before any bodies were discovered. The first batch of bodies to be brought out caused a near panic on the part of relatives and friends of the men, who had been milling around the portal.

Another Mine Hero

A score of women rushed to the cars, grasping the bodies to ascertain if among the victims was a member of their family.

Another hero of the disaster who gave his life for his fellow-workers was John Saeger, Jr., a fire boss, who was with three other workers. When the blast came shoving his companions into a chamber of pure air, Saeger ventured out to determine whether there was a possibility of getting freedom through the mine passages.

He had no sooner left his companions, when the poisonous gases struck him down. His body was later recovered.

Will Be Cared For

The widows and children of the victims of the explosion at Frontier Mine No. 1 of the Kemmerer Coal Company will be cared for by the company, and there will be no need of outside assistance from any source for stricken Kemmerer.

This was the assurance given today to International News Service by Mr. Quealy, president of the company and reported to be one of the wealthiest men in Wyoming. Mr. Quealy declared the cause of the explosion which snuffed out the lives of over 100 coal miners, nearly 5 per cent of the town's population, had not been determined.

"The cause of the explosion in Frontier No. 1, has not been determined as yet," Quealy said, "but everything indicates a blow-out shot probably in entry No. 30, the last entry of the mine. One hundred and one miners and thirty-four day men were in the mine at the time of the explosion. Thirty-five were taken out alive. All men are out now except eleven who are probably in entry thirty, and whose bodies are expected to be recovered.

"We believe ventilation has been fully restored throughout the mine. All parts of the mine were explored early today except 500 feet of entry thirty, where we believe the remaining dead—eleven men—are now entombed."

TRANSPORTATION BEFORE COUNCIL

City Officials Listen to Arguments But Action Is Postponed

marked that the use of new busses as soon as possible could be stipulated in the franchise.

"We don't want to operate the old busses very much," he added, "because it costs us more to operate them than the new ones."

Schedule of Fares

The fare on the Pacific Electric buses would be 6 cents south of the crossing of the Burbank line. Ten tickets would be sold for 50 cents. These would be good for transportation by anyone without time limit. The school fare would be half rate.

"We would operate a bus system for 5 cents, if it could be done, "stated Mr. Smith, "but it can't."

"We expect to start out with thirty minute service on all of these lines. There will be some of them where we will have to give more frequent service especially in the morning and evening hours. We expect to do that. We are operating in Pasadena a total of forty-five busses. We already have under consideration the matter of the construction of a suitable garage to house our busses in Glendale."

Mr. Smith promised that special busses would be run from the northwestern section of the city to the new high school plant. He intimated that special bus service probably would be put on for especial occasions.

Then Comes Surprise

The opinion prevailed that the only companies in the field for the local franchise are the Verdugo Hills Transportation company and the Pacific Electric.

"A "bomb" was thrown into the meeting when Mr. Betts was introduced by J. D. Thomson. Mr. Betts expressed a desire to be given an opportunity to consider the franchise in behalf of the B. and H. Transportation company of Long Beach.

"I would like to have an opportunity to take a shot at it," he exclaimed. "I believe I know the jitney 'game.' I don't believe you people have stopped to realize how big the jitney business is."

Five cent fares within the city limits and frequent service were features suggested by Mr. Betts. He called attention to the fact that the three bus companies in Long Beach are operating about 100 busses and giving service ranging from four to nine minutes in frequency. He said that frequent busses "tempt" patrons to travel and that a number of people in Long Beach use the service several times a day. He proved this assertion by commenting on the fact that his company alone carries an average of 20,000 passengers a day.

Unfamiliar With Field

Mr. Betts admitted that he was unfamiliar with Glendale. He stated that he might not care to consider the franchise after he had surveyed the field. He promised to do this immediately and to report to the city administration within ten days.

"The type of busses that I would put on would be the highest type of busses that can be obtained for the jitney business," declared Mr. Betts admitting that the present busses in service in Long Beach are "cattle cars." He asserted that the busses which would be put on in Glendale would be of the newest approved safety type.

The impossibility of attempting to provide local service with six or seven busses was emphasized by Mr. Betts.

"The jitney service demands frequency!" exclaimed Mr. Betts. "It isn't a bus now and one day-after-tomorrow. It is a bus every few minutes."

The service proposed by the B. and H. Transportation company would be strictly local. It would have no transfer privilege to any Los Angeles service. When this point was developed, Mr. Betts at first admitted that his company was eliminated if Glendale desires a connection with Los Angeles.

"Why can't we get a franchise into Los Angeles?" inquired Harry S. Webb. "Why can't we?"

Causes Some Laughter

This inquiry was received with slight expressions of hilarity. An opinion was expressed that it would be necessary to have a new State Railroad Commission appointed first. It was stated, however, that the Los Angeles Board of Public Utilities had been on the point of giving a franchise for interurban bus service connecting Glendale and Los Angeles when the local city administration had decided that it did not want such service established because it might interfere with the electrification of the Union Pacific line on Glendale avenue.

Mr. Betts stated that he had been before the railroad commission a number of times and had always been treated courteously and squarely. He said that he could not tell exactly what action the railroad commission would take on an application for a franchise submitted by him, but that he felt sure that such an application would receive proper consideration.

Object to Solid Tires

A drawback to the operation of busses by the B. and H. Transportation company would be the fact that they would use solid tires, it is claimed. Mr. Betts stated that pneumatic tires have been found unreliable for jitney service. He asserted that such tires would not injure well-paved streets, but admitted that they would ruin poorly-paved streets.

The latter part of the meeting was devoted to a general discussion of the subject. About fifty citizens were in attendance.

"I would be in favor of giving the franchise to a competitor of the Pacific Electric," declared Rudolph Streit, president of the West Glendale Improvement association. "As long as you have no competition, you are at the mercy of the Pacific Electric."

"Why not turn three or four companies loose and let them cut each others' throats with such comfort and complacency as they could derive out of it?" suggested John F. McClish. "Why be selfish about it?"

Mr. McClish emphasized the fact that many residents have bought property with the expectation that the Pacific Electric bus service would be extended. He expressed his opinion that commuters to Los Angeles are entitled to serious consideration.

Administration View

Councilman W. A. Horn, who acted as mayor pro tem, expressed the official attitude of the city administration.

"The council is ready to grant the permit when the right proposition comes along," he asserted. "It is service that we must get. We are still a village in comparison with the city that is to develop."

A stirring appeal for action to throw off the "yoke of the Pacific Electric" was made by Theodore F. Fleischman of 701 South Adams street.

"Let us see if we can't get together and get some kind of action," he exclaimed. "I realize that the City Council has a hard task; they can't please everybody. We have listened to talk until we are blue in the face. Let us get down to business and get something done."

C. W. Ingledue, president of the Glendale Advancement association, stated that he admired Mr. Fleischman's "Yankee spirit." He called attention to the connection with Los Angeles which will be provided by the new line on Glendale avenue. He expressed his opinion that Glendale's need at present is for local service.

Needs Bus Service

Attorney Owen C. Emery and H. M. Butts, who represented the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, both expressed the opinion that Glendale needs a bus service which will bring residents to the local shopping district. Because of the fact that local merchants have invested their money in Glendale it is felt that they are entitled to much consideration.

A. T. Cowan, proprietor and publisher of The Glendale Evening News, decried the tendency to impatience. He expressed his opinion that it would be better to deliberate upon the subject carefully and thoroughly and decide upon the transportation system which would be best for the future of Glendale.

John R. Grey characterized the present rates on the Pacific Electric as "legalized banditry." He believes that it is possible to get a permit to extend a bus line into Los Angeles.

"The reason we haven't lower fare today," he remarked, "is because we haven't gone at it the right way. It is a disgrace that Glendale should suffer such exorbitant fares."

The meeting adjourned with the understanding that another meeting will be called as soon as Mr. Betts has had time to survey the field in behalf of the B. & M. Transportation company.

GLORY OF WHITE HOUSE DESCRIBED

Lavishly Decorated Suites Reserved for Family Of President

By ELEANOR EARLY
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge never had a maid in her life. Imagine how she'll feel when Mrs. Jaffrey, the housekeeper of the executive mansion, lines up twenty-five servants, and presents them to her.

It's going to be a great experience for the Coolidges—taking possession of the White House. For sixteen years they've lived in a place that rents for $30 a month. Now they are going to a mansion of greatness.

Almost everyone knows something of the public rooms of the White House—the huge reception hall; the state dining room, and the three state parlors, red, blue, and green, the famed China closet, the ante rooms where Tom, Dick and Harry cool their heels, and the east room, the room where three daughters of presidents were married, Ollie Grand, Alice Roosevelt, and Jessie Wilson. The room where lay three dead presidents, Lincoln, McKinley and Harding.

Huge Private Suite

Anyone can see those rooms. But hardly anyone knows of the private suite occupied by the president and the first lady.

There are ten bedrooms, five on either side of the hall, a study, library, east sitting room and west sitting room, private dining room, the first lady's room and her dressing room, the president's room and half a dozen bath rooms.

The room Mrs. Coolidge will probably choose was Mrs. Harding's, Mrs. Wilson's, Mrs. Taft's, and Mrs. Roosevelt's before her and has pale blue paper and hangings and rugs. Mrs. Harding chose the color scheme and had it completely refinished recently. Since blue is a favorite shade of the new first lady, it is quite probable she will make no change. If she wished, however, she may have it all done over to suit her own taste. The furniture is mahogany, spindly things in the first lady's room, and heavy, massive pieces in the president's room. Just now the suite is all occupied with the personal things of the Hardings, for, when they came to Washington, they brought more furniture than any other couple that ever moved into the White House. Moving vans today are taking away these things. The Coolidges will have less to bring, which makes not a bit of difference, since they may purchase all they wish. Mrs. Coolidge may even renovate the guest rooms, even though they are so charming just as they are that she is hardly likely to attempt improvement. One is blue, one is pink and another is rose. Perhaps the loveliest is yellow—though the orchid one is very sweet—and dainty and the little white one quite adorable.

GERMAN EXPECTS GREAT UPHEAVAL

Return of Imperialism Is Prediction Made by Medical Expert

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—"Watch out for a great upheaval in Germany shortly" is the warning of Dr. Arthur Sonnenberg, former health commissioner of the city of Kiel, in that country, now visiting here.

"Conditions recently have developed to a point where conflict is inevitable," Dr. Sonnenberg said. "Bavaria is in the hands of the monarchists, Thuringia is controlled by Communists, Saxony by radical Socialists and Prussia by plurality Socialists. Out of these opposing elements trouble is bound to come.

"The 'Safety Police' are powerless to control the demonstrations of the factions. The Socialists possess arms and carry on military training in defiance of the republican government.

"The depreciation of the mark has wrought inestimable damage to the morale of the country. The only thing that solidifies sentiment of the nation at large is resentment against the French invasion of the Ruhr and the executions and imprisonment of Germans resulting from that.

"Personally I look for a restoration of monarchy, but not before half a century has elapsed. It is unthinkable that the former kaiser should ever regain the throne. His second marriage has destroyed his chances.

"The crown prince, however, might possibly succeed in restoring the monarchical regime if extraordinary circumstances favored such a move, but it is unlikely. Recently he has somewhat gained in popular opinion by the manner in which he has taken his exile.

"A restroation, if it does come, will no doubt be through the cooperation of the Austrian Germans, who will join in an attempt to create a greater Germany that shall have for its eastern boundaries Russia, Hungary and the Balkan countries. Such a new Germany will gladly take up her share of the world labors. In the Peace Palace at The Hague we who look to the future see a symbol gleaming through the clouds of present-day conditions."

To apply the Golden Rule one must not lay too much stress on the gold.

Bus Line Franchises

This being the time set for public hearing in the matter of application of the Verdugo Hills Transportation company and Pacific Electric Railway company for franchise to operate bus line in the city of Glendale, Don Campbell, representing the Verdugo Hills Transportation company, outlined the proposed routes, transfers, 5-cent fare south of Doran street, 10-cent fare north, with a half fare for school children. Mr. Smith, representing the Pacific Electric, outlined proposed route, transfers, 6-cent fare south of Doran street, 10-cent fare north, half fare for school children.

Mr. Betts, representing the B. & M. Transportation company of Long Beach, addressed the meeting, asking for an extension of time on hearing to enable him to look over the city with a view of presenting a proposal to put on a city limit 5-cent fare, half fare for school children, and a frequent service.

Meeting adjourned with no official action taken, but with a promise to call another meeting as soon as possible.

AGE RINGS DOWN CURTAIN ON COBB

After Seventeen Seasons In Big League, Georgia Peach Is Through

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Age inevitable is finally running a dead heat with Tyrus Raymond Cobb. It has been an eighteen years' chase, but age always wins.

The great Cobb is all over and done with as a major league star and it hardlly needed the sage observations of baseball writers traveling with the Tigers to confirm this opinion. It is probably his last season as a major league regular.

Cobb's trouble is bad legs, the ball and chain of base ball men. A ball players without legs is like a bath without water. Take one away and the other ceases, automatically.

For years, Cobb's arm has been bad and base runners have made a practice of running just a bit wild on him. But he still had his batting eye and a suggestion of the great speed he once knew and the combination was more than enough. After more than seventeen years in the profession, Cobb remained a star at the outset of the 1923 campaign.

Speed Has Gone

Now, however, the magnificent speed has vanished and he no longer hits with the venom and frequency of those other carefree years. He is through.

Detroit baseball writers declare Ty it not aware of this fact, that being a failure common to victims of this. They are always the last to realize the grim truth.

Those in close touch with affairs at the Detroit club are authority for the statement that its rather distressing position in the race can be attributed, in part, to Cobb's disabilities. They say he has lost many games this year by his failure to cover ground in center field.

Cobb's name will always remain green in the minds of baseball fans. In all the years baseball has been played, there was never a man who could do so many things so well. No greater ball player ever lived.

SANITARIUM IS LUNCHEON HOST

Interesting Facts and Figures Are Submitted on Institution's Growth

work, meeting with a steadily growing success, and the stability of the various institutions conducted by the denomination rests on the conviction that the principle on which they are working is the correct one.

Recalls Old Days

W. T. Knox, formerly treasurer of the general conference of the United States of the Seventh-day Adventists, expressing his interest in the welfare of the institution, stated that the sanitarium and denominational work of the church are closely allied and that the hospital is an active feature of the evangelical work of the denomination, as carrying out the precepts of Jesus Christ, who went about healing the sick and preaching salvation.

Mr. Knox recalled the old days when the present site of Glendale was marked by nothing more permanent than a road up the valley, before any sign of a town was located here, and praised the local board for the progress that has been made since the present hospital was started in 1904. He referred to the fact that the Seventh-day Adventists have now twenty-four sanitaria and healing establishments in the United States, and the same number in other parts of the world, none of which, he asserted, had ever received an unfavorable report from the commercial agencies of the country.

All these institutions, he stated, are run on an independent basis, although all of them are under the control of the church. No other place, he added, offers a wider scope for the work of the sanitarium than does Glendale, where the opportunities for meeting people are so numerous and where the chances for rendering service are unequaled.

Presents Board Members

Other members of the board who were introduced by Mr. Kimlin were W. B. Saulsberry, vice-president of the board; Dr. H. G. Westphal, national superintendent and surgeon-in-chief; Dr. W. J. Johnson, of the sanitarium staff; B. M. Emerson, secretary-treasurer of the Pacific Union conference; Elder G. W. Reaser, Dr. Riley Russell, a member of the staff who spent fourteen years in the Korean mission field before returning to take a position on the staff here; W. E. Whalen, superintendent of construction; B. F. Bliss, of the finance department; and Architect Alfred Priest, who prepared the plans for the building.

Councilman W. A. Horn, on behalf of the people of Glendale, thanked the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital board for their hospitality, characterizing the new institution as one of which not only Glendale but the entire state of California could well be proud; and D. H. Smith, vice-president of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, also expressed the appreciation of the members of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

At the close of the luncheon, Mr. Kimlin pointed out to the guests the new Seventh-day Adventist academy that is being built on a fifteen-acre tract close to the new sanitarium, and on his invitation a number of those present made an inspection of every part of the building, admiring the wide sweep of mountain and valley to be seen from every side of the building and also praising the excellent modern construction of the hospital.

Sex Novels on Decline Says Harold M'Grath

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Is the sex novel passe? Is the public clamoring for problem stories or has the vogue died out?

"The sex novel will decline," says Harold MacGrath, noted American novelist of this city, "as it has always declined since the days of Reynolds. The wheel of fiction turns; today the sex novel is on top of the wheel, tomorrow at the bottom. For a purely sex novel has no life and never had.

"If you will recall all the masters," he adds, "sex was a means of exploiting some beautiful character; it is abnormally vulgar. It is without any excuse save of pulling in a few shekels.

"Life! they say. Well, the toothache is life, but a yarn around an aching tooth wouldn't give it permanency. I'll wager that not one of the sex novels of today will be remembered ten years hence."

A girl, who was married in 1921, at the age of 18, and who had obtained a divorce, applied for another marriage license. Because she is not 21 she was informed that she would have to obtain her parents' consent before the desired license could be issued.

WHETHER you buy a bolt for 5 cents or Accessories for 50 dollars, you will find the treatment accorded you the same. You will find a corps of skilled salesmen imbued with the "Saving and Serving with a Smile" spirit ready and willing to extend every conceivable courtesy. Although the Western Auto Supply Company—thanks to the confidence and faith of the motoring public—has grown from a one-store concern to a system which now operates over 70 stores in the West, the personal element has remained intact. Each salesman is taught the value of a satisfied customer. Each salesman is instructed to carry out our policy of "Satisfying the Customer." The guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded still holds good in all of our stores. We assume all responsibility.

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Varney Hosts to Number of Friends on Occasion

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Varney of 1409 East Wilson avenue were pleasantly surprised and made unusually happy when a number of their friends called to congratulate them and participate in the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary on Monday, August 13, 1923.

A big celebration had been planned by immediate members of the family, but, on account of the recent illness of Mrs. Varney, the affair had ben postponed, so, when their many friends called during the day, wishing them well, extending congratulations and presenting them with many lovely gifts, including flowers, candy and a wonderful wedding cake, they were made unusually happy. A shower of postcards from friends and relatives not able to be present was also part of the surprise.

During the day about forty friends called to bestow their good wishes, and in the evening a number of friends and relatives gathered together at the Varney residence for an informal social time. Music and a general good time was enjoyed, and later a dainty course of refreshments was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Varney were married in Sherbrooke, Quebec, Cananda, August 13, 1873, and on November 5, 1904, came to Glendale, where they made their permanent home.

They have two daughters and two grandchildren. The daughters are Mrs. L. Andrews of Lexington drive and Mrs. J. E. Andrews of Verdugo road. The grandchildren are Gordon and Lorraine Andrews, children of Mr. and Mrs. L. Andrews.

Remarkable, Intriguing Facts About Peru By Leader Of Motion Picture Expedition

By GIL A. COWAN

DESCRIPTION of Peru by J. Barstow Budworth, who is organizing a motion picture expedition here for official propaganda work in that country, intrigues the imagination of many Glendalians and the following information regarding that country is given the writer by the film director:

"Callao is the port of entry and twenty minutes away by rapid electric trains the visitor finds Lima, a city with estimated population of 300,000. It is a Castilian Spanish city, but most modern. Pizarro laid the cornerstone of its cathedral in 1535 and the great church was consecrated in 1625.

"Lima also is famous for its government palace, the Plaza de Armas, the Plaza de la Inquisition, grand old Spanish houses and, in strange contrast, excellent hotels, trolley service and electric lights which give the city quite a blend of the mediaeval and the modern. The metropolis also boasts of many libraries, a museum, zoological garden, exposition palace, race track, bull ring and a great public market to which the populace flocks.

Beautiful Valley

"Cuzco is the ancient capital of the Incas, reached by twenty-one days' travel on mule back. It is one of the most beautiful valleys in the world and has many remains of one of the earliest American civilizations. And right here I want to tell you a little story," interrupted Mr. Budworth:

"According to the ancient traditions, the Children of the Sun came from Lake Titicaca, charged with their celestial mission to the scattered and miserable beings who originally occupied the country. It was at Cuzco that the wedge of gold they bore sank miraculously into the earth, denoting that here they had reached the spot where their work had to be found.

"Cuzco still possesses many remarkable relics of the Incas. Although there is an enormous number of them, which would occupy far too much space here, mention may be made of the palaces of the Inca Rocca, Manco Capac, Temple of the Sun and Fortress of Ollantaytambo. I believe the world has nothing to show, in the way of stonecutting and fitting, equal to the skill and accuracy displayed in the Inca structures at Cuzco," commented Mr. Budworth.

Highest In World

"Lake Titicaca is the highest navigable body of water in the world, with modern passenger steamers plying between ports of Peru and Bolivia. It is found at an elevation of 12,500 feet and is larger than all the lakes of Switzerland combined. It is a marvelous sight and will provide my company with unusual photographic setting.

"Trujillo, Peru, is an ancient city lying close to the ruins of Chan-Chan, a pre-Inca city, with great embattlements, temples ornately carved and fortifications still intact. There is a university there which was founded in 1551 with 2,000 students in attendance. The Temples of the Sun and Moon and ancient pottery, as well as weapons of the Incas, may be found in the vicinity of Trujillo.

Great Possibilities

"Many other pretty little cities are accessible from Lima and the scenic possibilities for motion pictures are unlimited," said Mr. Budworth, in concluding a resume of his plans, in which many Glendale people will wish him well. In a word he summarizes his purpose in the following expression of entente cordiale:

"The bringing of South America to North America and the binding of a blood brotherhood which shall be a new Monroe doctrine through the medium of the universal language—the sense of sight."

INDORSES MOVE TO BUY H. S. SITE

Frank Booth Favors Bond Issue to Provide for Civic Center

Editor, The Evening News: I was very much interested in the letter of Mr. J. R. Grey, regarding the purchase of the old High school site, through a bond issue, to provide a civic center, to hold all the various departments required by our city officials, also space to lease off for a post office site; a dandy place, centrally located for all kinds of community services, etc., a regular oasis in a busy center with beautiful grounds laid out for the tired toiler to sit and rest, entertained one or two evenings a week by a city borough band, comfort stations installed, etc.

I think the idea is a splendid one and ought to be fostered by the whole city—the balance carried over towards a Junior High school for the evergrowing northwest section of the city of Glendale. Yours truly,

Ball Game Featnre Of Merchants' Picnic

The ball game that is to form one of the big attractions at the Glendale Merchants' Association picnic at Haddock-Nibley Verdugo park today will be staged at 1 p. m., promptly, according to an announcement this morning.

A. T. Cowan, who had been appointed to manage the west side team, yesterday resigned from the position and his place has been taken by Sam Wilson, who had been selected originally as manager of the east side nine. George Hastings will captain the east side team, and the dividing line between the two organizations will be drawn through Kenwood street.

C. C. MEET HELD AT SANITARIUM

Members of Board Guests Of Hospital Directors In New Building

The directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce held their weekly meeting yesterday at the new Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, where they were the luncheon guests of the board of directors of that institution, and at which members of the City Council and representatives of various civic organizations were also present. President Jesse E. Smith occupied the chair and the proceedings were opened with grace by Rev. Philip K. Kemp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, after which a toast was given, at the suggestion of vice-president W. E. Hewitt, wishing the new institution every success.

L. T. Rowley reported on the action he had taken to insure a proper consideration of Glendale's claims to be connected with Hyperion boulevard before the commission which is to settle the route to be followed, but he stated that only the preliminary steps had been taken so far, in consultation with the engineers, and that he would report at greater length at a future meeting.

Harding Resolutions

Director C. D. Lusby read a copy of the telegram that had been sent to Mrs. Harding on the death of the late president, and he also read the resolutions that had been authorized by the Chamber of Commerce, a copy of which follows:

IN MEMORIAM

Glendale, California,
August Tenth,
A. D. 1923

ON THIS SAD DAY the citizens of Glendale unite with the people of the entire nation in sending to you our sympathy and consolation in this, your hour of bereavement.

We are mindful of the great shock and the irreparable loss to our nation sustained in the death of your husband and our President, Warren Gamaliel Harding. We honored him for his integrity, we trusted him for his sincerity and we loved him for his humanity; and we, in common with all other liberty-loving Americans, bow our heads in grief and share in part of the sorrow that is yours.

May the strong arm of the Almighty protect you and the gentle sweetness of the lowly Nazarene comfort you in the days that are to come.

"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform," and at such times as these we humbly submit ourselves to the inevitable and with sorrowing hearts and through tearful eyes we say, "Thy will be done.'"

THE GLENDALE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.
By JESSE E. SMITH,
President
By E. F. SANDERS,
Secretary.

Mrs. Florence K. Harding,
Marion, Ohio.

Further time was asked by Director D. L. Gregg to prepare a full report on the request of the Glendale Automobile Dealers association, protesting against the alleged extra charges for delivery of merchandise to Glendale merchants by the members of the Los Angeles Wholesalers association.

Bigger Depot Promised

In reporting on the Southern Pacific depot, George Bentley stated that he had been assured by the contractor that word is expected daily now from San Francisco authorizing him to proceed with the work, which will, he stated, be on a larger scale than was at first contemplated and that will result in Glendale's having a passenger station that will reflect credit on the city.

The report of G. Clay Goodloe showed that the Chamber of Commerce had collected $599.25 in dues and $500 for the service fund in the last two weeks, and another contribution from A. Ferber, Inc., of Los Angeles was also reported.

Close for Picnic

It was decided that the Chamber of Commerce should co-operate with the Glendale Merchants association today to the extent of closing the offices during the afternoon to permit the staff to attend the picnic in Haddock-Nibley Verdugo park.

A special meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce will be held tomorrow night in the Citizens building.

T. D. Burleson, Pacific coast representative of the Red Cross, who had come here to address the organization regarding the workings and the organization of the Community Chest, spoke briefly, going into the subject at greater length with the members of the Community Chest committee, who adjourned to another portion of the sanitarium building.

Following the adjournment of the Chamber of Commerce board, the program that had been prepared by the officials of the Sanitarium was carried out.

GREEK PAGEANT TO BE PRESENTED

Glendale Art Association Members to Be Present At Laguna Beach

The Glendale Art Association is fortunate in having selected Saturday, August 25, as the day of its first annual outing at Laguna Beach, according to Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh, president, who writes from there, where she is a member of the summer colony of artists, to say that the Laguna Art Club will present a Greek pageant on August 24 and 25, for the benefit of their building fund, plans for which contemplate erection of a beautiful art gallery on one of the prominent headlands north of Laguna.

The Laguna Art Club will entertain the Glendale Art Association with a tea at the clubhouse Saturday afternoon, August 25, Mrs. Ballagh writes, urging that those who wish to remain over the week-end make reservations as early as possible.

Reservations may be made by addressing Mrs. Ballagh at Laguna Beach, care of the Laguna Art Club.

Full information regarding the picnic may be obtained by communicating with Miss Annie McIntyre, vice-president of the Glendale Art Association.

E. J. Baldwin Will Build Summer Home

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Baldwin and Miss Lura Boyd Baldwin, of 211 East Acacia avenue, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Baldwin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leaton and family, James O'Donnell and his mother, Mrs. J. M. O'Donnell, of Benecia, motored Sunday to Idylwild for the day. While there Mr. Baldwin selected a site for a cabin and expects to build a summer home immediately.

The cabin will be 20x30 and will have a living room with a twelve-foot permanent dining table to accommodate the children and grandchildren of this hospitable couple. Among other features planned are two dressing-rooms for those enjoying the swimming pool.

Attend Council Meet On Bus Application

Members of the West Glendale Improvement Association, who were scheduled to meet last night, adjourned their meeting at the Columbus avenue school and went to the city hall to attend the transportation hearing.

R. Streit, association president, states that the next meeting will take place the second Tuesday night in September.

Glendale People in Oregon Mine Project

According to a dispatch from Eugene, Ore., a group of Glendalians are participating in the further development of the Lane county mining district at Bohemia, near Cottage Grove.

Filing has taken place of five placer claims by Florence L. Harris, J. Mari Bondy, Margaret E. Collins, Frederick A. Collins and W. C. Harris, all of Glendale. The claims are in the vicinity of Steamboat Springs.

Deputy Constable Cy Adams Indicted

Cy Adams, deputy constable at Burbank, was indicted yesterday in the Los Angeles county superior court on a charge of manslaughter, and he will have to go to trial for the shooting of Nicola Bietiantonis in Burbank on the night of June 1.

Adams was participating in a dry raid and the officer declared that when Nicola resisted arrest, he shot him. Friends of the dead man who witnessed the shooting contradict the officer's story.

Bail was set at $10,000 and it is expected special prosecutors will be employed by Bietiantonis' countrymen to stop further raids on their homes on the part of officers who are searching for booze under the Wright and Volstead acts.

RED CROSS MAN TELLS OF NEED

Community Chest Committee Given Hints About Organized Charity

The Community Chest committee of the Chamber of Commerce met yesterday afternoon on the sun porch of the new Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, directly after the luncheon tendered by the officials of the sanitarium to directors of the chamber and city officials.

Dr. Warren Z. Newton, chairman of the committee, presided, introducing F. D. Burleson, a representative of the Pacific Coast division of the American Red Cross, who spoke on "Organization Methods."

In his remarks, Mr. Burleson inferred this city is under-organized along lines of social welfare and charitable work, perhaps because of the prosperity of this community.

"Every city has a number of social agencies working toward the same general end," said Mr. Burleson. "In most instances, their work overlaps, causing duplication and lost motion. And in a great many cases, since their plea for funds is based on the good work they claim they have done in the past, a very costly element of competition enters.

Would Curb Competition

"If there is any one outstanding problem that faces welfare workers today, it is how to eliminate this social competition, which is far more keen and costly than any business competition," he pointed out.

'What must be done in Glendale," is the speaker's belief, "is to show the people wherein the Community Chest idea is a true solution of a serious problem in civic life. I would say that as far as your city is concerned, the idea should be given several months of general publicity, before any campaign for funds is launched."

Mr. Burleson's remarks were followed by a brief general discussion, after which the committee adjourned, to reconvene next Tuesday noon, August 21, for luncheon, in the auditorium of the Citizens' building, 150 South Brand boulevard.

TODAY—Tourists Again in Ireland; The Irish Political Outlook, by Daniel O'Connell, Dublin Correspondent.

TOMORROW—What Citizenship Means; Tragedy to Those Denied, by W. F. Sullivan, St. Louis Staff.

By DANIEL O'CONNELL
For International News Service

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—Irish tourist traffic is beginning to buck up nowadays. Not since 1914 have there been so many Americans, Englishmen and Scotchmen in Dublin as there have been this summer; and, of course, everybody patronizes the jaunting car.

Somehow it is always easy to tell the nationality of the tourist on the jaunting car. Generally two or three Americans hire a car and hang on for dear life. The Englishmen always make up the required party of four, but if you see six or seven people huddled up on a car with a capacity for seating four people you can be certain they are Scotch.

A few days ago I saw a party of Scottish tourists on O'Connell Bridge, and they opened their eyes in amazement when they saw only one man on a car. One of them immediately ran and took a picture of the passing jarvey car and the one passenger. I suppose that picture will be exhibited as a proof of the extravagance of the Irish.

Anyway, the tourist revival is one of the signs that Ireland is rapidly becoming a peaceful country to live in. Even election meetings are not broken up nowadays, and the republicans have dropped the sword for the word-of-mouth. The date for the election of the new Dail has been set for August 27. All parties are hard at work, and it is certain that the Labor party would make a good show only for the split in their ranks. Since Jim Larkin's return from the United States things have developed within the labor ranks, and Larkin has led a revolt against the officials of the Labor party in the Dail. Far-seeing and skilled labor does not follow Larkin, but the unskilled men and the dock workers he numbers among his followers. With division in the labor ranks, it is doubtful that in the new Dail they will even hold their present numbers. It will not be at all surprising if Larkin himself secures his return.

The Farmers' party, working in conjunction with the commercial interests, will make a good showing, and it is predicted that forty per cent of the new members will be composed of this group, but President Cosgrave has no doubt but that the government supporters will again be in the majority. There is hardly any likelihood that they will not, as the government party machine is as perfect as ever was the old Sinn Fein party machine. The republicans intend to nominate one candidate for each constituency, but as each constituency returns four and some as many as six and seven members it can be seen that their chances are small. Indeed, it is doubtful if more than ten republicans will have seats in the new Dail.

CONVERTING SINGLE CIRCUIT SET

There are so many complaints running along the following lines: "Can hear several stations at the same time, what shall I do to eliminate them," that, for those who wish to change their set a little and get rid of this interference the following article will prove interesting.

The average single-circuit set consists of two coils and a variable condenser, one of the coils acting as the primary or tuning coil and the other as the plate inductance or tickler coil. They usually consist of a vario-coupler and are wired up as shown in Figure 1. This shows the variable condenser shunted around the primary coil, but it can be in series with it, when one has a long aerial.

The two or three circuit set is wired as shown in Figure 2 and consists of primary and secondary coils, and in the case of the plate inductance, of a third coil. The secondary and plate inductance of the latter set is almost identical with the single-circuit set, as you will note by comparing them. The entire single-circuit set and the one shown in Figure 2, when taken from the right of the dotted line, are the same. If you could connect your aerial and ground wires to the points marked Y in Figure 2 you should have a single-circuit set, which would be identical with Figure 1 from points X X.

Those having sets wired as per Figure 2 could very easily connect two more binding posts to their sets at points Y Y, and use it for a single circuit set when conditions for receiving were exceptionally good, and this would make the operation of their set very simple.

For those who have the single-circuit set and wish to get rid of the interference from other stations the change can be made without much trouble by making a coil of about 100 turns of wire wound on a form about three inches in diameter and tapped every ten turns for the first ninety and every one turn for the last ten. If you have a variabue condenser handy it will not be necessary to make unit taps as suggested, but make ten, ten-turn taps instead. The variable condenser will allow fine tuning between the ten-turn taps. The condenser should be connected at Q in Figure 2.

After the coil is wound it is only necessary to put it in inductive relation (close to the tuning coil) to the set, and tune-in in the usual way, but now the movement of the regular condenser (the one that came with the set) will be much sharper than when used as a single-circuit set, due to the coupling between the new coil (primary) and the secondary coil.

As a rule, the coils in a single-circuit set are mounted upright and to the left of the cabinet. If this is the case with your set, you can mount your new coil close to it and to the left of it. If the coil is mounted near the top of your panel the new coil can be laid on top of the set. No matter where the coil is located in your panel, remember that your new coil must be close to it and in the same place and NOT at right angles to it. If you place them at right angles there will be little, if any, transfer of energy between the coils, and you will not get results.

In changing from the single-circuit to the two-circuit set, all that is required is two binding posts and a tuning coil. If you have a small variable condenser, it can be used to advantage.

It may be possible that you will not cut out the objectionable interference at first, but with a little practice you will soon become adept at it and learn that by moving the coil away from the regular receiving set, stations you do not wish to hear will not come through when on a different wave length. Every time you move the coil it will be necessary to readjust your secondary variable condenser and maybe the first, too.

BILLY WHISKERS

by FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

You remember what a noise in his shed wakened the bridge tender in the night in yesterday's story.

McDermott was too thoroughly surprised to move and stood still, legs wide apart, and teeth chattering, when lo, the goat tried to dodge between his legs, which upset him and he rode for two or three steps on Billy's back before he fell off. He cracked his elbow and head, which caused him to pull the trigger of the blunderbuss unconsciously, and off it went with a noise like a small cannon.

This shot aroused the whole of Shanty Town, and soon half-clothed people were running to see what the trouble was over at McDermott's. They all thought there had been a raid on the town by the police, a thing that often happened in the dead of night.

When the gun went off, it awoke Billy, who had been having a nightmare and a fight with the Hooligan gang. It was when Billy butted his dream boy that the things in the shed began to fall off their hooks and make a terrific noise.

"Well, well, McDermott! So it's only the nightmare you've been havin'! And a takin' yer two goats fer buffaloes, was ye?" And with a good hearty laugh at McDermott's expense, his neighbors trooped back to their beds.

"Darn yer old Billy goat's hide! Now ye have made me the laughin' stock of Shanty Town until someone else gets in a mess! And here's hopin' they git in it soon," and with that Mr. McDermott went back to bed.

The next day was Sunday, and there being no school, the Hooligans had all day long to catch Billy and Nannie and play some trick on them. But the goats were too much on their guard to be caught or coaxed near the boys, though they were offered bunches of fresh carrots from the garden and tender young cabbage leaves.

Finding they could not entice them near, the boys tried to chase and corner them, but to no use. At last they retired to the top of a shed to try to think out some way by which they could get hold of Billy and hitch him to a cart and make him pull them around to do some errands.

After much thinking, they struck on a plan. They would borrow Mr. Murphy's low, four-wheeled cart made out of a packing box, which he kept to deliver his vegetables and which he made two strong dogs pull.

(Tomorrow will tell whether the plan worked).

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY ON THE BOARD WALK

"Well, Nurse Jane, are you all ready?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his muskrat lady housekeeper one morning.

"Ready for what?" Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy wanted to know. "To get your dinner? Why, you have hardly had breakfast."

"No, I mean are you ready to go down to the seashore board walk with me?" asked Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. 'It is going to be a very hot day, and if we go down to the ocean beach, and sit on the board walk, we shall get cool."

"Thank you, I'll go with you," said Nurse Jane.

Uncle Wiggily took his airship out of the garage. His airship was made from an old clothes basket, with toy circus balloons to make it rise, and there was an electric fan to make it go. Inside the clothes basket were many sofa cushions, so if the airship fell Uncle Wiggily would have something soft to land on.

"Whizz! whizz!" went the airship, and soon Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane were at the seashore beach. The greenish waves were breaking on the sandy shore, and the cool breeze was blowing.

"Ah, this is delightful!" said Uncle Wiggily as he and Nurse Jane sat down on the board walk, which was a wooden sidewalk extending up and down the beach.

"Yes. I am glad you brought me here," said the muskrat lady.

And just then Uncle Wiggily heard some one crying most sadly. It could not be Nurse Jane, for she was happy, so Mr. Longears looked around to see where the tears were leaking from.

And he saw Susie Littletail, the rabbit sister of Sammie, sitting on a bench not far away, sobbing as though her heart would break.

"Why, Susie!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I didn't know you were here on the board walk! Whatever is the matter, and where is Sammie?"

"Oh, he's digging a tunnel in the sand," Susie answered. "He and I came down on an excursion. But, oh dear!"

"Why are you crying?" asked Nurse Jane, for just then Susie let fall more tears than ever.

"Oh, I'm so sad and unhappy!" sobbed the little rabbit girl.

"Why?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "It is so lovely here that I should think any little animal girl would be happy."

"Would you be happy if you lost your five-cent piece that you were going to spend for a ballon—if you lost it down a crack in the board walk, would you be happy?" asked Susie through her tears.

"No, I don't believe I would," answered Uncle Wiggily slowly.

"Well, that's why I'm crying," said Susie. "I dropped my five-cent piece—boo—hoo!—and it ran down a crack in the board walk—boo-hoo! hoo-boo!" and Susie cried backward and frontward at the same time.

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose. Then he said:

Dry your tears, Susie! I am going to crawl under the board walk and get your five-cent piece back for you."

"Oh, can you?" asked the little rabbit girl, smiling through her tears. "Can you?"

"I can and will!" declared Uncle Wiggily. And he began crawling beneath the board walk, which was sort of hollow like. Along on the sand under the boards crawled the rabbit gentleman. He soon saw Susie's bright fice-cent piece lying under the crack through which she had dropped it.

Uncle Wiggily was about to pick up the money and crawl out, when, happening to look up at the boards over his head, the rabbit gentleman saw through the cracks, the tail of the Skillery Scallery Alligator.

'Ha! Where the tail is there the beast must be also," thought the bunny. "The Alligator is probably crawling along, looking for me or Nurse Jane. But I'll fix him" So Uncle Wiggily took a sharp stick, which he found beneath the board walk. Then he jabbed the sharp stick up through a crack into the ribs of the Alligator.

"Oh, my goodness," bellowed the 'Gator. And he was so surprised, not knowing where the stick jabbing was coming from, that he turned a flip-flop somersault into the ocean and swam away, the Alligator did.

So he didn't nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears after all. And the bunny came out from under the board walk with Susie's five-cent piece and everyone was happy. So, after all, you see, it is a good thing the little rabbit girl lost her money for the bunny to find, else the 'Gator might have made trouble.

And if the leaf in the story

"Oh, my goodness!" bellowed the 'Gator.

book doesn't turn green like the leaf of a tree and blow away in the wind, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily mending a leak.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

HON. ARTHUR PONSONBY

The recent introduction into the house of commons by the Hon. Arthur Ponsonby of a bill to abolish hereditary titles created more of a sensation because of the social connections of its author than because of its somewhat revolutionary nature. The Hon. Arthur was at one time a page of honor to Queen Victoria, is related to many of the noble families of England and at one time took an active part in English society.

W. H. PONSONBY

In his earlier political career he was a Liberal, but has since become an important member of the Labor party. His bill is not the first of its kind with which the British commons has had to deal.

Ponsonby was born February 16, 1871, and is the third son of the late General the Right Hon. Sir Henry Ponsonby. His mother was a granddaughter of Earl Grey, one-time prime minister of England. He has one son and one daughter.

MISS LOUISE LEE SCHUYLER

Once more have the life-long efforts of Miss Louise Lee Schuyler in behalf of unfortunates of all kinds been recognized. The trustees of the Roosevelt Memorial Association has just awarded her a gold medal in recognition of her pioneering and philanthropic work in various fields.

LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER

Miss Schuyler is now in her eighty-sixth year. She is a great-granddaughter of General Philip Schuyler of Revolutionary War fame and of Alexander Hamilton.

She was born in New York City in 1837. She is the daughter of the late George Lee Schuyler and of Eliza Hamilton. At the breaking out of the Civil War she joined the United States Sanitary Commission and was one of the chief volunteer workers of its New York branch.

In 1872, as a result of her visits to the inmates of poorhouses and hospitals supported by the state, she founded the State Charities Aid Association, which has proved a potent factor in reforming public charitable institutions. She led the reform movement which culminated in reforming all the dependent insane farm county poorhouses to state hospitals.

The first training school for nurses in this country, that of Bellevue Hospital, New York, was initiated by Miss Schuyler. She organized in 1906 the first committee in the United States for "after care of the insane."

In 1915 Columbia University bestowed on Miss Schuyler the first degree it had ever conferred on a woman, that of doctor of laws.

Heart and Home — Health and Happiness

A Matter of Choice

Today's Short Story by Ad Schuster

Adna Flatts had never married. He looked around the home which was his and told himself he was glad. It was because he had remained single that this money had been left to him. He wrapped a rug around his feet and sat in front of the blazing fire.

"I guess, at that," said Adna Flatts, "I earned it."

When he was a young man Adna was informed by his father of the provision in the will. He remembered how seriously he had taken it and how his brothers and sisters had shared in the feeling. Then, one by one, they had married, leaving the rest to rejoice in a larger share. Adna was more than 40 when Ed took a wife and left him alone in the field. Well, he'd never marry now. He planned what he would do with the money.

When the inheritor of the Flatts fortune was 70 the riches had grown while their owner had shriveled and was bent. He looked up his nearest relatives, discovered he had two unmarried nieces, and sent for them to pay him a visit.

"I wanted to tell you," he told the girls, "that you have a chance of being my heirs. I'm going to leave a little to each of my kin but the largest part to the unmarried ones. You are the only ones single."

"You mean," this from the younger girl, Nellie, "if either of us gets married she will lose what you would have left her."

"Yes," said Ada, as one who understood, "that is what he means."

The two young women tried to interest the old man but found little response. Once he had told them of the will and his plans, he retired to his books and his hours before the fire. They made the visit as brief as possible and went home. After that the money of Adna Flatts started in to shape the course of their lives.

"It is well enough for you to say it will make no difference," said Ada, "but you know it will. We have always had to count every penny and there are many things we both wish. There is enough money to make us both rich."

When Dawson Loomis began to call upon Nellie the place Uncle Adna's money held in her scheme of things was outlined clearly in the younger girl's mind. If it were not for that will, she decided, she would be perfectly happy. As the time approached when she knew she would have to decide she went for a lonely walk and thought it out.

"I feel ashamed of myself," she told her sister, "in letting the thought of that money worry me. I intend to act just as if I had no Uncle Adna. If Dawson proposes I will accept."

The elder sister tried to hide a smile. She had been expecting this and with the expectation had come the realization that it would mean she would be given all of old Adna's money. Well, it was worth it. Ada thought of Percy Winters, waiting patiently for her to accept him, of the way she had put him out of her heart—and then, as ever, she thought of the things money would buy.

"You are quite right," she said, "if you are really in love."

"And you? You have loved Percy for years and are letting the thought of an inheritance separate you. Ada, you are not so attractive as you were and not so happy. You are getting hard, and maybe selfish. I know, for I've had it out with myself. What did Uncle Adna's money ever bring him? What will it bring you? Marry Percy and we will let him know that he and his old fortune cannot dictate to us."

For a moment the elder girl's eyes shone. Then the lids half closed as the old thoughts returned. It was not likely Uncle Adna would live long. After that she could marry as she wished.

"I'll have to wait," she said lamely. "You see, I am not sure that I love Percy."

Nellie was married and Ada waited. Uncle Adna was alive when Nellie's second child was born. Ada was thin, now, and there was a shrewd, tightened expression around her eyes. After all this time she would not give in. When Percy proposed once more and added that this time was the last, she refused him with less regret than she had thought possible. When he married and went away she told herself she was not sorry. Then Uncle Adna died and left all of his money to Nellie.

"All of my life," he said in a letter accompanying the will, "I have regretted that I mapped my course for money. I have had all it brings except a home and family. As I have wished that I had defied my father's orders respecting marriage, I planned to leave my money to that one of my nieces who would put love above riches."

The letter was for Nellie only. She read it and put it in the fire. "Don't you think," she said to her husband, "that we can afford now to give Ada enough to take that trip abroad?"

"Sure," he answered. "We'll have to do a lot for her. Do you suppose she is disappointed in your getting the larger part of the money?"

ARTFUL AND CHARMING LINES

A combination of dotted swiss and plain organdy makes the most attractive frock for afternoon wear, and this model lends itself to development in other materials than those mentioned. If preferred, the bands may be omitted from the skirt, but who would forego a band or a frill in these days of flounced frocks? Medium size requires 3½ yards 36-inch swiss and 1 yard of 36-inch organdy.

White cotton crepe makes up the second dress very daintily and modishly. The attached two-piece gathered skirt has a three-piece tunic which is open in front. The upper edges of the tunic are gathered to form a heading, the sides being picoted. There are gathers at the shoulders in front, and fancy stitching finishes the short sleeves. Medium size requires 4¾ yards 36-inch crepe.

First Model—Pictorial Review Dress No. 1506. Sizes, 16 to 20 years, and 34 to 40 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

Second Model—Dress No. 1639. Sizes, 16 to 20 years, and 34 to 46 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

HOT WEATHER AND HAIR

As a general thing the hot weather months are good for the hair, if only for the reason that hats are lighter in weight and not worn so many hours every day as in winter. Nevertheless, many people are alafmed because the hair begins to fall during the hot weather. This is quite natural. The hair comes out in the spring and autumn, as well as during any bad heat spell. There is no need to be alarmed unless too much falls.

As the scalp, like the rest of the body, perspires more freely in hot weather, it should be more frequently washed. Once a fortnight will do very well.

If there is any dandruff, a beaten egg should be rubbed into the scalp and allowed to dry. If the hair is too oily it should be rubbed over after the shampoo with a sponge wet with a solution of half bay rum and half water.

Generally speaking, it is not advisable to use too much alcohol on the hair, for it dries it and tends to turn it gray, but used as I have advised it cannot do any harm. It will dry the hair more quickly and being astringent it will prevent so much hair from falling out.

If the hair seems too dry after the shampoo, and after the alcohol treatment, moisten the tips of the fingers with olive oil and massage the scalp thoroughly, using enough oil so you reach every part of the scalp. Such a massage will not make the hair greasy but merely soft and glossy.

A good hair tonic should be used summer and winter. My favorite Pilocarpine Tonic is good both for hot and cold weather. In the summer, however, less oil is needed, so the oil rubs before the shampoo may be forgotten. The scalp should be kept as clean as possible during the summer months. If hair tonic is rubbed on with a sponge, the wet sponge will act as a cleansing agent for both scalp and hair.

Mrs. K.: If you have any tendency to grow hair on the face, never use glycerine. There is no risk in using a cream that is made from a fine vegetable oil.

Pale: Since your health is good, your system may only be in need of more oxygen to give your skin more color. More outdoor exercise would do this, but, if that is not possible, learn to breathe more deeply, so that you feel the floating ribs expand, and all the muscles of the back being exercised. Practise these exercises every morning and night and whenever you feel the need of exhilaration during the day.

Summer heat is good for the hair.

Reader Friends have been kind enough to mail me the following canning recipes to publish so that other women might enjoy them:

"Pineapple-Apricot Jam: Three large or four small pineapples, two pounds of dried apricots, granulated sugar. Soak the dried apricots overnight, then put them through a food chopper. Also put the pared pineapples through the food chopper. Measure the mixture and to ten cups of it add seven cups of sugar. Boil this combination of chopped fruit and sugar for twenty minutes and turn it into hot, sterilized jelly glasses. When cold, cover with melted paraffine wax.—Mrs. E. K."

"Canning Okra by the Open-Kettle Method: Prepare the okra to cook for canning, and put it in an enamelware or porcelain-lined preserving kettle; pour over it one-half cup of vinegar and enough boiling water to cover; add two tablespoons of salt and cook for fifteen minutes. Then pack it into hot, sterilized glass jars, adjust new rubber and glass top, and completely seal at once. (Green beans will keep excellently if canned in exactly the same way.) Here is another good okra recipe:

"Okra-Tomato Mixture Canned by Open-Kettle Method: Combine one gallon of very ripe tomatoes with one gallon of okra (both vegetables prepared for cooking) and put the mixture into your preserving kettle. Pour over it one cup of vinegar, and add one-half dozen hot red peppers which have been washed, seeded and cut small. Season with four tablespoons of salt and boil, in water to cover, until the okra is very tender (about forty minutes), then can as above described for plain okra.—Mrs. T. O'R."

"Pumpkin-Chip Preserve: Peel and halve several small ripe pumpinks, remove seeds and cut the remainder into thick chips. Weigh, and for each pound of pumpkin allow two cups of granulated sugar and one-half cup of lemon juice. Place the chips in a deep earthen dish in layers with sugar between. Pour the lemon juice over all. Let stand a full day, then turn the mixture into a preserving kettle and let boil till tender with a little water and lemon rind added to it (allow about one cupful of cold water for every three pounds of pumpkin, also one tablespoon of bruised ginger root tied in muslin, and three lemon peels shredded). Turn the tender, cooked pumpkin into a stone jar and set away for one week in a cool place, covered. Then pour off the sirup from the chips and boil it down, till thick. Put the chips in glass jars and pour the thick sirup over them. Completely seal—Mrs. H."

Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

ON CREPE HANGERS

There has been so much fun made of crepe hangers that one really wonders sometimes how people can do it without seeing themselves as fit subjects for the cartoonist.

And yet:

My new machine struck one morning. With the exquisite tact of the gasoline engine, it stalled in the middle of a much traveled road and with a load of people in it whom I was about to take for a ride. Instead of being taken for a ride, they got out and helped me push the machine out of the way. We then telephoned for a garage man (who couldn't come for an hour, of course) and while we waited one of the members of the party regaled me with the following tale.

A Cheerful Tale

He knew a man who had a new engine. And they told him not to drive it too fast, and he drove it too fast because he was in an awful hurry to get to a place for a week-end. And the engine froze (just like mine apparently) and instead of getting to that place to spend the week-end he spent the week-end in an old farm house next to the garage while they took that engine to pieces and put it together again. And the teller of the story, wouldn't dare to say what it cost him.

He fairly smacked his lips over this last statement. I felt sure that the only reason he wouldn't tell the cost was that he felt the sum would seem more ominous to me thus left in doubt.

Again. A friend of mine has bought a gown, exquisite in its soft shades and lovely pleatings. She is showing it to a mutual friend. Says the mutual friend: "Isn't it lovely! You know, I was awfully tempted to buy one something like it, but I knew someone who did and the pleating came out in no time."

Or perhaps some member of your family is ill and a neighbor comes in and gives you a little neighborly advice and counsel while you are waiting for the doctor. The encouragement runs something like this:

"Yes, he certainly has a temperature and with that rash, I don't like to say it, but it does look a little like scarlet fever. You know, I feel as if I knew something about that for I had it myself and both my children have had it. Robbie started in just like that, and I never had such a siege in my life. I sha'n't forget it in a hurry. Yes, I hate to say it, but that rash and that high fever does look like it. I hope the doctor will be here soon, my dear."

Hate to say it? She loves to. She is getting the joy of seeing how startled and horrified you look, and of enhancing her own importance as one who knows about such things.

Or is She Disappointed?

When the doctor comes and says it is nothing but indigestion, she says she is so delighted. And maybe she thinks she is. But I have a suspicion that part of her is (subconsciously, perhaps) disappointed.

A terrible thing to say? No, because if she recognized it, she would be ashamed of it. But really now, wouldn't she find it a little more exciting if your husband actually had scarlet fever and she were in a position to tell the news over the telephone to your mutual friends and to give you advice out of her experience, and to feel that she had been clever in making the diagnosis so quickly?

The thing the crepe hanger wants is the center of the stage.

And that is always such a ruling passion that it makes us blind to the absurdity and the selfishness of the means we use.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

Diabetes

Diabetes is a very serious disorder. The child or the adult suffering from it should be under the care of a specialist. Joslyn says that 75 per cent of his cases of diabetes are over-fat, and he concludes from this that the prevention of over-fat is one of the greatest preventative measures against diabetes that we have.* He says that no doubt many of the diabetic children were over-fat before the diabetes came on.

Diabetes is almost always caused by a disorder of the pancreas so that its internal secretion, which has to do with the oxidizing of sugar in the system, is not produced normally and the sugar is not converted into the form that can be used by the system, and so is eliminated in the urine. This not only deprives the system of its needed sugar and starches (for the starches are converted into sugar in digestion) for energy food, but it keeps the tissues saturated with sugar in a form which acts as a poison.

The thing for you to do, mothers, is to prevent the excess candy and pastry eating, and excess eating in general, which leads to much overweight and the disabling of the pancreas and other organs so that they cannot perform their work. In that way you will prevent diabetes—as well as many other diseases—in your children (and in yourself) in the large majority of cases.

There has been perfected an extract of sheep's pancreas (that part of them that makes the internal secretion), called Insulin or Illetin, which is being used now effectively in diabetes. It permits the patients to eat enough to gain and keep up strength. But, so far, it has not been known to cure the disease and it has to be taken by injections indefinitely, and they are more or less painful. So do your best to prevent the disease, mothers.

In general, the diet for diabetes has to be very low in carbohydrates—the sugars and starches. The acid fruits and nuts, except peanuts and chestnuts, are the foods that have the smallest amount of carbohydrates. The foods highest in carbohydrates are bread, potatoes, cereals, legumes, macaroni and the sweet fruits.

Diabetes is not a case for home treatment, so do not try this, mothers. But do all you can to prevent its forming.

Condiments and Stimulants

Condiments such as mustard, pepper, vinegar, etc., should not be allowed in children's diet, because of their irritating effect upon the delicate mucous membrane of the intestinal tract.

These will not only irritate the digestive tract, but the kidneys, liver and other organs also. So pickles and all articles hardened and preserved in brine and vinegar should be omitted from the child's diet. Lemon juice can be used instead of vinegar because lemon juice is a natural unfermented fruit juice. It has a large amount of the anti-scorbutic vitamins and is a healthful food.

*It is also one of the greatest preventive measures against very many other disorders. That is why I pay so much attention to it in my teachings.

Tomorrow—Answers to Correspondents.

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose 4 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 250 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember, it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the columns as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s. a. s. e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"Three Jumps Ahead," featuring Tom Mix and his horse, Tony, is the William Fox feature showing at the Glendale theatre today.

In this film, which tells a virile story of the western plains, written and directed by Jack Ford, Tom is assisted by Alma Bennett, it being the first time she has been his leading lady, but probably not the last, judging from the excellent results obtained.

One of the thrills offered by this production is a twenty-foot leap on horseback over a deep canyon. In addition, Tom rolls down a cliff while driving a stagecoach.

The picture is full of love, thrills and punch and adds one more bright feather to the cap containing laurels won by Mix.

THE GATEWAY

"The Purple Highway," with Madge Kennedy in the stellar role, is the Paramount picture showing tonight at the Gateway Theatre. It is an adaptation from the play "Dear Me" by Luther Reed and Hale Hamilton, and is directed by Henry Kolker.

Greenwich Village, New York, is once more in the spotlight, in this whimsical film, whose story tells of a young playwright and musician, both of them failures as far as their professions go, who, spurred on by April Blair, little slavey in the "Home for Artistic Failures," of which they are inmates, both succeed.

In the strong supporting cast are Monte Blue, who plays opposite Miss Kennedy, and a whole host of other capable players.

MARGARET ANGLIN PLEASES AT MASON

Los Angeles theatergoers are to be congratulated upon having the opportunity to enjoy the brilliant art of Margaret Anglin, throughout the whole of the present week.

Miss Anglin is now playing at the Mason Opera House with her elaborate production of Oscar Wilde's comedy, "A Woman of No Importance," and on the stage of the same theater where she achieved a great triumph only a short time since in "A Woman of Bronze," she will offer her portrayal of Mrs. Arbuthnot—a performance credited with being the greatest of her great career.

The Oscar Wilde play was staged by Miss Anglin for the first time at the Fulton Theater, New York, a few seasons back and had a very successful run of several months, being hailed as one of the most compelling and forceful characterizations of modern times.

The comedy is one of the author's plays not frequently seen, necessitating, as it does, an actress of unusual qualities for the stellar role—qualities possessed in abundance by Margaret Anglin.

It is not only a splendid example of the playwright's beautiful dexterity, but possesses a strain of subtle pathos more than in any of his other plays.

Supporting Miss Anglin in this production are seen Henry Mowbry in the role of the profligate Lord Illingworth. Mowbry will be remembered for his fine performance with Cyril Maude's production of "Grumpy". Vera Berliner, seen here in "A Woman of Bronze," will be the Lady Caroline Pontefract of the cast, and that grand old lady of the stage, Emilie Melville, will charm with her portrayal of Lady Hunstanton. Others in the cast are Raymond Northcut, Janet Cameron, Jerome Collamore, Allen Connor, Elwyn Harvey, Gladys Knorr, Elwyn Eaton, Wheeler Dryden, Wentworth Green, Harry Barfoot, Henry Mowbry and Sally Williams.

The last matinee will be Saturday.—Advertisement.

EAGLE ROCK

L. A. CAPITALISTS TAKE OVER BANK

Sweeping Changes in Effect Among Former Staff Of State Bank

Announcement that the Eagle Rock State Bank has been taken over by Los Angeles capitalists comes as a surprise to many local people who were awaiting the removal of the institution to the site recently obtained at the corner of Central and Myrtle avenues.

By this move G. D. Page, formerly with the Bank of Italy in San Francisco, becomes president. Harry Halfhill, of the Halfhill Tuna Packing Corporation, Long Beach; Robert Marsh, head of a prominent Los Angeles brokerage firm, and E. E. Perrenot, recently an insurance broker in El Paso, form the directorate.

While C. E. Harsh retains his connection with the institution, A. J. Whitman, G. C. Mattison, H. H. Maxson and Godfrey Edwards are released from interest.

It is understood that the bank is contemplating removal to larger quarters.

Club to Expand

Addition of an Arts and Crafts section to the Women's Twentieth Century Club is contemplated, according to Mrs. A. G. Riley, president. It is also planned to add a Junior Auxiliary, that boys and girls of this community may have a central gathering place for their games and dances.

The clubhouse is already headquarters for the Junior and Juvenile Music clubs, both of which are federated. And Dramatic, Musical and Parliamentary sections are maintained.

Last season a $100 scholarship to Occidental College was presented to a worthy student. This year a full $200 scholarship was presented, the recipient to be selected by a competent committee.

Origin of Club

In 1903, when Eagle Rock valley was only a farming district, there were no automobiles to shorten distances, and roads were soft and dusty for walking, a little group of women met at each other's homes to ready and study. They organized under the name of Women's Twentieth Century Club, with Mrs. Sarah Lucas as the first president. The club was incorporated in 1907 and federated in 1908.

Late in 1913, when the need of a clubhouse was strongly felt, the women—numbering less than seventy-five—secured a loan, and a frame structure soon adorned a corner of Colorado boulevard, the main thoroughfare of the town, 100 feet wide. It will be adequate for several years yet, as it contains a large auditorium with stage, dressing rooms and cloak rooms, a reception room with fireplace, dining room and a commodious kitchen and pantries. All necessities for the interior have been gradually added by the workers.

To secure room for future additions, the adjoining lot, on Kenilworth avenue, was purchased last year and a cosy cottage was built on it for the caretaker and his wife. The value of the land and buildings has greatly increased and the club is nearly out of debt. The membership is now about 300.

On "Guests' Day," each month, a luncheon precedes the club session and is a popular feature.

Many Active Workers

Among the presidents who have labored to make the club a strong force for good in the community are Mrs. Godfrey Edwards, Dr. Myrtle Phinney, Mrs. Alice Winters and Mrs. M. T. Lee. The present incumbent, Mrs. A. G. Riley, was last year's president of the Federated Parent-Teacher Associations of Eagle Rock, and of the Community Players. She enters upon her term of office full of enthusiasm for the coming year's work and will during the summer vacation evolve many plans in the line of progress and increased usefulness.

Other officers elected for next season are: First vice-president, Mrs. C. I. Ritchey; second vice-president, Mrs. A. C. Fisk; third vice-president, Mrs. Alice Winters; recording secretary, Mrs. H. M. Perry; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Hunt; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Doucette; auditor, Mrs. C. T. Tinkham; directors, Mmes. M. T. Lee, Sherrill B. Osborne and J. H. Moshier.

BURBANK

START PLANS ON NEW BOULEVARD

Dedicate Ground for Wide Highway From Roscoe To Burbank Limits

Action has been started to create a new boulevard to follow the present San Fernando boulevard, on the other side of the Southern Pacific tracks, it is learned.

Ground has already been dedicated from the Roscoe crossing to Pacoima, and from Roscoe to the Burbank city limits. It is understood that the Los Angeles Planning commission will not accept any subdivision map that does not provided for a seventy-foot street that would be a portion of this proposed new highway.

The property owners along a considerable portion of the stretch from the Edwards & Wildey property in west Burbank to the city limits in that direction have promised a right-of-way and it is expected that the balance of the necessary thoroughfare will be yielded.

Plan Is Outlined

The plan is to have the new road swing into the present boulevard at the china and aluminum factories, where the street has been widened into a semi-circle, and come into the city as it does now; while the present road, instead of crossing the tracks, would continue on to Flower street, thus making the proposed truck highway, which is conceded by all to be necessary and which has been recommended by Hugh Pomeroy, secretary of the County Planning commission.

It will be the ultimate plan to continue this new boulevard along the upper side of the tracks, from Pacoima to San Fernando.

Peter B. Kyne Sued

The famous author Peter B. Kyne, noted for his writings on Southern California, is one of a group made defendants in an action brought in the Superior court by twenty-one stockholders of the Aluminum Products Company of Burbank. The charge is misrepresentation in the sale of stock. Attorney Charles W. Ostrom represents the plaintiffs.

The complaint aske judgment for the amount of stock sold the plaintiffs, totaling $50,000. According to Attorney Ostrom, the company was forced into bankruptcy on June 4, last, with liabilities of approximately $200,000. W. S. Bullis and William H. Moore Jr., who were appointed receiver and trustee, respectively, are both among the defendants named in the suit, list of whom includes, besides Peter B. Kyne, William E. Duerston, George L. Patterson, Ewell D. Moore, George B. Roberts, T. M. Morrison McKenna, Richard D. King, Ben S. Hunter, B. A. Dempsey, R. E. Wait and D. Daniels.

Goodfellows Prosper

Now that the Goodfellow club has been re-organized and has taken over and re-named the Horne hall, it is hoped by the membership committee to build the roster up to 500, the highest previous membership having been 110.

The new hall, which will henceforth be known as the Goodfellow hall, has been completely fixed over and presents a very attractive appearance. The club rooms, hallways and stairs are nicely carpeted, while the big room has been re-decorated in a most pleasing manner.

Reports from headquarters of the Reds and the Blues show many new members, with Ed Swearingin, captain of the Reds, leading the race.

HOUSE GUEST

Fashion And Bobbed Hair
Another Federal Inquiry
Schools Prove City Growth
Harding's Creed For News

By Gil A. Cowan

FASHION decrees that the bobbed haired beauties will fall in disfavor this coming season, according to Glendale's own expert, Mrs. E. C. Pendroy, who has just returned from the east.

We do not doubt but what the arbiters of style would have it so, yet in our opinion they have another guess coming. Bobbed hair has just "taken root" in this country.

And especially in this southland of ours where the less locks the more enjoyment. Carrying a head of hair is no joke in this day of motoring, swimming and hiking. It makes the loss of a hairpin too important.

Also the girls are going out for athletics and long hair doesn't dry out readily after a shower bath; nor is it easy to care for in this day of age and speed. So good-bye curls, braids and flowing tresses.

The United States attorney general has ordered a probe into the prices of gasoline. That means we are going to pay more. Every time the federal government gets busy investigating the railroads or other corporations they learn—always—from the highly paid and very capable legal array that business is being done without profit.

Betcha nickel, folks, that John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford could hire people to prove they are digging down in their pockets to keep the flivvers on the highways.

What's worse, the evidence is so convincing that we believe it in most similar instances. And no use arguing, anyway; they make their money talk in any argument.

The list of teachers for Glendale Union High school this coming year as published in The Glendale Evening News yesterday looked like a regimental headquarters array, in army parlance. Such it really is, too.

There will be in the neighborhood of 1700 pupils enrolled, it is believed, and that would make a fair sized army.

Then to think that less than twenty years before Principal George U. Moyse and two assistants handled the institution of higher education here, we know that Glendale has grown as rapidly as the Chamber of Commerce. For there are eighty-seven teachers and an executive staff of four in Glendale Union High school this coming semester.

With the departure of Mrs. Florence Harding from the White House less and less will be seen in the columns of the newspapers about the late beloved president, but there are traditions and quotations which will live on, for example, the following:

Years ago Warren G. Harding, owner of the Marion Star, gave to every reporter and writer on that paper a newspaper creed. It ran:

"Remember there are two sides to every question. Get them.

"Be truthful. Get the facts.

"Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than 100 half wrong.

"Be decent, be fair, be generous. Boost, don't knock.

"There's good in everybody. Bring out the good, and never hurt the feelings of anybody.

"Treat all religious matters reverently.

"If it can be possibly avoided never bring ignominy to an innocent man or child in telling the misdeeds or misfortunes of a relative.

"Don't wait to be asked, but do it without the asking, and above all be clean and never let a dirty word or a suggestive story get into type. I want this paper so conducted that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of any child."
